

Identity Theft Protection & Credit Monitoring

Protection now. Security like never before.

Of the 2.4 million identity theft and fraud reports filed in 2019, 1.7 million were fraud -related, and 23% of those cases reported money was lost. In 2019, consumers reported losing more than $1.9 billion related to fraud complaints, an increase of $293 million from 2018.¹

Putting a freeze on your credit may not be enough.

Identity theft goes beyond credit fraud. Criminals can file tax returns, steal from investment accounts, or rack up medical bills.

1 in 2 consumers have been notified of a data breach.

Nearly 1 in 4 people experience identity theft. If your information has been breached, MSA is here to help if a problem arises.

Identity theft can happen for years to come.

Data breaches can expose info that typically doesn't change like SSN, birthdate, or name. This can be used for identity theft long after a breach.

Simply put, being a victim could mean losing everything that you've worked so hard to build. Protecting yourself against identity theft requires regular monitoring of your credit reports, bank accounts, as well as safe storage of your personal and financial information. But that can be a lot of work.
